New Building Gets Underway

Work has begun on the new Fine Arts building at Mary Washington College by Irons and Reynolds, Inc., Washington contracting firm, according to plans drawn by J. Binford Walford and O. Pendleton Wright, Richmond architects, who have designed other Mary Washington buildings. Unless unforeseen complications in securing supplies occur, completion of the building is scheduled for May, 1952.

Situated on the former golf course facing College Avenue to the north of Seacobeck, the dining hall, the structure comprises a main building and two wings. The front portion of the central building contains classrooms on the first floor and two radio studios with control and production rooms, and additional instruction rooms on the second floor. Extending beyond this section is a two story auditorium or small theatre seating around 300 persons. On one side of the stage is a scene shop and on the other a rehearsal room. Storage and dressing rooms will be located in the basement.

Arcades connect the main building with the two wings. The right, or art wing, provides space for studios and class instruction; the left, or music wing, with sound proof walls throughout, contains practice as well as class rooms. Directly above the band and orchestra room in this wing is the chorus room. Storage space for uniforms and gowns is provided for each of these groups. Adequate space for exhibit rooms and offices has also been allocated in the three sections of the building which is neo-classic in style, in keeping with the various edifices on the 381 acre campus.

Forum To Bring U. M. T. To Stand

"Should We Have Universal Military Training In Peacetime?" will be the question under discussion at the Forum on February 15.

Dr. Sublette and Marjorie Erickson will argue in support of the proposal, while Dr. Hildrup and Harriette Seeley will take the opposite side. The discussion will be held in Monroe Auditorium at 7 P. M.

There will be an important Steering Committee meeting before the Forum at 6:30 P. M.

W. W. Celebrates Theater Month

International Theater Month will be celebrated for the second time during March, 1951. Last March a series of three plays, the Mary Washington Players' A Doll's House, R. P. L.'s The Tempest, and the University's production of She Stoops To Conquer, was presented on the Hill in observance of International Theater Month. The purpose in presenting these plays was to bring to the eye of the public the themes of world peace, using the theatre as a medium.

As its share in the 1951 I. T. M., the Mary Washington College Theatre is presenting As You Like It on March 17 and 18. Despite the fact that the content of this play is not directly related to the purposes of I. T. M., Shakespeare has a universal appeal and a message for people of every political ideology.

International Theater Month is an experiment unique in the annals of the American stage. It was first sponsored in March, 1950, under the auspices of the American National Theater and Academy and the U. S. National Commission for U. N. E. S. C. O. This project is part of an over-all objective of the National Commission to increase international understanding. Today the themes of I. T. M. have become increasingly important. "The existing international tensions have sharpened the need for developing better understanding among peoples of all countries."

McIntosh Gets Leave To Teach In Japan

Dr. Clifton B. McIntosh, associate professor of Spanish and Portuguese at Mary Washington College and member of the faculty since 1940, has been granted a two-year leave of absence. He has left for Osaka, Japan where he will teach in the School of Foreign Studies at Osaka University under the auspices of the Institute of International Education.

Tickets Available For 'Town Meeting Of The Air' Today

Two hundred and fifty tickets for the broadcast of "America's Town Meeting of the Air" will be distributed to M. W. C. students Tuesday, February 13, between 4:30 and 5:00 P. M. at the ticket booth near the front entrance of George Washington Hall. These will be distributed on a first come, first served basis. Only two tickets will be given to each person and they will be free.

Fifty tickets will be distributed to the faculty and staff by Mr. Reynold Brooks, publicity director, on the same day and under the same conditions at 4 P. M. in George Washington 202. The Fredericksburg Chamber of Commerce has allotted 300 tickets in all to Mary Washington College. The broadcast is being paid for by the Chamber of Commerce.

"America's Town Meeting of the Air" will be broadcast from George Washington Auditorium Tuesday evening, February 20. A preliminary meeting will begin at 8:15 and the broadcast itself will start promptly at 9 P. M. The doors will open at 7:30 and close at 8:45.

After 8:15 non-ticket holders will be admitted as seats will not be held after this time.

As yet the subject of the panel and the speakers on it have not been disclosed.

JUNIORS PRESENT BEAUTY IN 'MGM'

March 2 is the date of the Junior Benefit which has been entitled, until later notice, "M. G. M." The benefit will include the traditional beauty contest, and the queen elected will reign over the informal dance Saturday night.

All clubs are to turn in the name of their contestants to Rita Morgan, Box 1217, before February 20. Tickets will be on sale outside the "C" Shoppe the week preceding the benefit.

College Presidents Urge Study of Registration Of American Women

Editor's Note: This is a copy of statement sent by 29 women's college presidents including Dr. Morgan Combs to Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, Assistant Secretary of Defense. The petition is reprinted in full for the benefit of the Mary Washington College student body.

To the Assistant Secretary of Defense:

Those of us who are associated with women's colleges today recognize the significant part which women should play at the present time in our country's history. Women always stand in a strategic position to exert a positive influence on their families and communities, and to do constructive work. In a national emergency, their responsibility is even greater. We believe that it would be a tragedy if the tremendous potentialities of women to serve their country should be underestimated at this time. American women will be happier in mind and spirit if they are given a job to do for their country, with a sound explanation of why it needs to be done.

In view of this conviction, we favor making a study of the possibilities of voluntary registration of women, and we would support any move to call a conference of representatives of institutions educating women to consider all aspects of this question.

If the crisis becomes more acute, women in large numbers will have to take part in the armed services, in industry, in technical jobs. But we hope that no large-scale effort will be made to "resettle" women outside their own home localities. We recognize the implications of such a crisis. But at the same time we wish to stress our concern for those areas fundamental to our society, which directly underlie the strengthening of morale.

First among these is the home. Our government will, we believe, recognize that in a time of national danger women must do everything possible to maintain and strengthen their homes as centers of inspiration, of self-sacrifice, of devotion to the ideals which our country is preparing to defend. The love and protection of our children, the nourishing of creative values and personal standards, provide the foundation of our democracy. We ask the government to do everything possible to keep the mothers of young children in their homes; or if they must assign them to work, to make certain that proper day-care and recreational centers are provided to give adequate care to children.

Next in importance for women is the field of education. This suffered almost irreparable damage during the last war, when the armed services and industry made serious inroads on the teaching profession. Many of those who gave up teaching never returned to the field. It is urged that teach-

A Case For College

The present national situation which has taken or will soon take over three million American men into the armed services has aroused the question—Should or will women be drafted?

There has been a lot of rumor and wild speculation at Mary Washington, and all of us have pictured ourselves in chic uniforms receiving snappy salutes and attentions from handsome officers. However, the problem has received a more practical attitude in the statement signed by President Combs and 28 other prominent women's college presidents and which appears on the front page of the Bullet.

To us, the most significant point of the statement is that the thinkers and educators consider the registration and eventual draft a factor to be considered and dealt with. We favor the recommendation of registration and also the emphasis the statement places on the contributions that women can make in the home, teaching, nursing, and doing welfare work.

It is of special interest to us that these college presidents are urging that women "continue their education and prepare themselves to carry the burden of the professions. They must be reminded constantly, when tempted to stop their studies to do direct work for national service, that they are called upon to take the place of the young men who are leaving our college and graduate schools to enter the armed services." This brings to mind Dean Alvey's talk in assembly last semester when he reminded us that the struggle with communism will probably be a long drawn out conflict and that in the long run a college education will prove to be a formidable weapon.

George Fielding Eliot discusses the probability of women conscription in February's Companion. In an article entitled "If Women Are Drafted," he said that the draft will probably include single women 19 to 30, childless widows, and divorcees. These will be drafted for the army, factories, and civil defence. According to Mr. Eliot only about a tenth of these will be for the army; while the majority will be for industry. He goes on to point out that women with two years of college will be able to apply for Officers' Candidate School.

Congressman Rivers of South Carolina told a Bullet editor last week that the drafting of women is unlikely as long as the country is not completely mobilized. However remote the possibility of actually drafting women may seem, the registration—survey of America's women power—doesn't seem so impossible. If this state of emergency continues to become more intensified, registration will become a reality.

From the "bull sessions" we've taken part in, we don't think there will be so much complaining at the idea. As Dr. Martin says, "With added privileges come added responsibilities." We are definitely in favor of the statement signed by Dr. Combs. We think its high time we students faced the world squarely. We must realize what may be asked of us and see if we can give the right answers.

Come Week Is Here

Christianity Our Major Emphasis Week begins at Mary Washington next Sunday. The University Christian Mission has helped plan the organization of this week which is M. W.'s Religious Emphasis Week. Every college is privileged once in four years to have the University Christian Mission's cooperation in sending outstanding leaders to the campus. It is indeed a rare opportunity for Mary Washington students to have the advantage of hearing and meeting the leaders—Rev. Robert W. Burns, Miss Helen Turnbull, Dr. Carl Wolf, and Representative Brooks Hays—who will be on campus February 18-22.

A special Bullet is being distributed this week to everyone to help further acquaint the student body with the leaders and with Come Week plans.

Christianity is Our Major Emphasis. Will it be your major emphasis?

Travelers Express Thanks

A college bus is an asset—but only those students and faculty members who have ever visited New York between semesters can really appreciate how wonderful the Mary Washington College bus really is. To those whose foresight was responsible for the purchase of the bus, to all those who helped plan the trip, to the dining hall staff for preparing an early breakfast and for sending along food, and especially to Mrs. John Russell for her untiring effort and her cheerful disposition all the "New York trippers" wish to express a sincere thank you.

(Ed's note: A feature on the New York trip will appear in next week's Bullet.)

Psychology class at Coe College, Iowa, is really progressive, according to an item in the "State College News." The story told about a word association test being given by one of the psychology teachers at Coe. The usual black-white examples were given, then the Prof. came up with "love." A state police lieutenant was recently assigned to investigate the "filthy, obscene and leucituous" magazine which was confiscated by Mass. police. The content of the magazine, according to the editor, a collection of cartoon and jokes from other college magazines.

Girls from co-ed schools are not as well educated as girls from non-male institutions... Girls who call you honey have gone steady at one time or another... ## Shorthand Proves Valuable Asset

The December issue of MADEMOISELLE reports that a knowledge of shorthand can net you an annual $364 more than typing alone. According to a Bureau of Labor Statistics survey of New York City office workers, stenographers averaged $47 a week to the clerks $40. And the N. Y. State Employment Service says it's having trouble finding stenographers to meet present demands.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

Thought you might like to include the following item in your next issue.

On February 5, 1951 Miss Margaret McClennahan was unanimously elected by the student body of Southern Seminary and Jr. College as the "Most popular" student of the year.

Miss McClennahan just transferred to Mary Washington from Southern Seminary. "Our loss is your gain".

Sincerely,
"Fellow Students"

The Bullet wishes to express congratulations to Margaret and to welcome her to Mary Washington.

Dear Editor:

Intercollegiate Tours of Boston, a reliable firm of many years experience is sponsoring a tour this summer which leaves on July 14 on the S. S. Independence (which is making its maiden voyage this month) and returns to Montreal either Sept. 3 or Sept. 11.

I hope that MWC will give academic credit for the course. The course is called Classical Backgrounds and covers trips and activities from Naples through Italy (Rome, Assisi, Florence, Bologna, Venice, Milan among other cities) into Switzerland and France (Lyons, Avignon and of course Paris) to Belgium and the Netherlands and finally to England.

The total cost is $1294 for the shortened tour and $1465 for the extended one. Cabin class accommodations are slightly higher.

In addition to this tour, Intercollegiate Tours has other groups, also lead by college teachers, with the following topics: Art Appreciation, Backgrounds of English History and Literature, Broadening Horizons, Comparative European Education, Contemporary European Education, Drama and Theater Arts, European Art Tour, The European Democracies, Modern European History and Social Science Tour.

I personally have folders with itineraries and details for all these tours and application blanks. It is advised that students who are interested contact me as soon as possible because (if the world situation allows us to go) we expect a large group of students and all the groups are limited in number.

In addition to these tours I have material on the tours run by the Bureau of University Travel. Their topics are somewhat similar but are all a good deal higher in price.

Sincerely,
Laura B. Voelkel

KOLLUM

It's here at last! No, not unlimited light cuts for seniors, not taxi service to the dorms, not permission to smoke in the "C" Shoppe—but—something much, much nicer—a brand new dining hall! It awaited us on our return from the semester holidays and when all the shrieks of ecstasy were heard, they came from the girls who had been underground for one semester and could now view how the other half lives. Yes, as Miss Stephenson said, the basement was informal. The kids could eat with one foot on the table, pick up mashed potatoes with a knife and leave when they got good and ready—but—that sorta spoiled 'em all and when they brought their lanterns upstairs from the mines, it was pretty rough at first to start acting dignified; however everyone was perfectly willing to reform when they gazed at the walls painted a lovely pastel green and saw the beautiful chandeliers. To climax the whole affair, everyone went plowing through the plush carpets and that did it! Who could ask for anything more. Sure enough, everyone is mighty happy to see the new "green room" and doggone, if the food doesn't taste better. Psychology I guess.

Current Events

By Jackie Bobbin

John Foster Dulles, Truman's special representative, has discussed provisional security arrangements with Japan's leaders. The U. S. would be able to maintain a protective screen of troops and bases in Japan even after a peace treaty had been negotiated. A Pacific pact of some sort is in the offing. Each nation would probably be expected to contribute to a collective security. The U. S. would probably guarantee that Japan would not go overboard in rearming.

The British steel industry will be nationalized this week.

The aim of current mobilization is to expand and control production without cutting too deeply into the civilian economy; to prevent inflation by controlling prices and wages. Dissensions have arisen toward this program. It will be the job of four important men to overcome any strife. They are Charles E. Wilson, Director of Defense Mobilization; Eric Johnston, Economic Stabilization Administrator; Michael V. DeSalle, Director of Prices Stabilization; and Cyrus S. Ching, chairman of the Wage Stabilization Board. Remember these men. A great deal of authority has been vested in them.

Rivers Stresses Preparedness In Convo. Speech

The Hon. L. Mendel Rivers, Congressman from South Carolina, spoke at formal convocation last Wednesday, February 7.

Mr. Rivers, who has been a member of the Armed Forces Committee since he entered Congress in 1940, was on the Hill at the invitation of Sigma Tau Chi, honorary business and economics fraternity, and Pi Gamma Mu, honorary social science fraternity.

In a soft South Carolinian drawl, Congressman Rivers said, "In meeting the leadership in world affairs, we are faced with responsibilities of preserving democracy at home, preserving the spread of political concepts repugnant to the American traditions and at the same time, call upon our people to undergo an austere program never before endured by a free nation in time of so-called peace. In imposing these straightjackets upon our own free people, we must be careful that they remain only so long as world conditions threaten our American way of life."

In discussing the Korean War, Mr. Rivers said that he would be glad of an excuse for the American troops to withdraw from the "worst place on the landscape of the world." He also said that he had proposed in Congress the dropping of the Atom bomb on the Chinese.

Mr. Rivers was very strong in his opinion that preparedness is a necessity. "We have to prove to Russia that this nation will resist any effort on the part of Russia to take what remains of our first line of defense which is Western Europe. This is the need therefore of keeping our armed forces in a state of readiness at all times for the protection of our front lines and at the same time not lose sight of the fact that our domestic economy must not be strained to the breaking point of bankruptcy in the process of so doing."

The Honorable Rivers said concerning the United Nations Organization "While we have the fondest hope for the success of the United Nations, despite the tragedy of Korea and the manner in which the United Nations has handled it, we would be foolish indeed to place all our eggs in the one basket of the United Nations. It is not enough to place our confidence in the presumed success of the United Nations. Providing adequate protection to this nation takes precedence, in my view, over all our hopes, all speculation, all theory, all eagerness for peace."

BSUings

Last Monday, February 5, most of you probably heard Mr. Ralph Winders who spoke first at council meeting and then an inspirational on summer mission work and the part that we as students and BSUers could take. In case you've forgotten during the mad rush of exams, we have inspirational at the Center every night right after supper. There will be lots more fine programs throughout the semester so make it a practice to come over every evening—you'll be glad you did.

We are all thinking and planning for Power Week which begins February 26 and goes through March 2. Rev. I. B. Hall from the University Baptist Church of Charlottesville, Virginia will be our speaker. The last two nights of this week will be devoted to student testimonies.

Prayer meetings for Power Week are being held every afternoon at five o'clock and will continue through February 25. Prayer does change things, so will you give us your prayer support that this week may mean all it possibly can in our lives?

Don't forget the greater Council meeting on February 12 at four o'clock!

Hopkins Becomes Airline Hostess

From campus to clouds—that's the story of Helen Hopkins, who graduated from Mary Washington College last June. She's now flying high as a new United Air Lines stewardess, serving aboard the company's Mainliners operating in and out of Seattle.

During her college days, the new sky girl was active in the art and philosophy clubs and was a maid of honor in the May Court. Her assignment to active flight duty followed completion of an intensive five-week training course at United's stewardess school, Cheyenne, Wyo.

In taking to the airways, Miss Hopkins has entered one of the world's newest, most popular professions for women. It was pioneered by United in 1930 when eight young ladies were hired to serve aboard the company's San Francisco-Chicago planes. Today, United alone employs more than 600 sky girls while nearly 5,000 are serving on airlines whose routes girdle the globe.

Chesterfield Sponsors Contest

Beginning this week there will be a Letter-to-the-Editor Contest. The best letter each week will be chosen by the Editor and the Managing Editor of the Bulletin and the writer will be awarded a carton of Chesterfields to be delivered by Pat Wise, Chesterfield representative on campus, after the letter is printed.

Another contest being staged by Chesterfield is a wrapper contest. Students should write their name and address on the back of a Chesterfield wrapper and drop it in the box which has been placed in the C Shoppe. Students may put in as many wrappers as they wish. Each Saturday at 10 A. M. Pat Wise will draw out the lucky wrapper and will give a carton of Chesterfields to the winner.

ing be given a high priority on the list of preferred occupations, just as the building of essential school buildings should have high priority in the construction field.

The war can be won on the battlefield and lost in the schools. A patriotic job can be done in the teaching of our children, a job that is equally important for the smallest children entering the schools for the first time, for those in elementary and secondary schools, and for those in college. We recognize the greatest urgency to exert pressure on our young women—the only ones who may be available for this job—to accept teaching as an emergency assignment of greater importance than more glamorous jobs closer to the war front. This may also be the time to ask many of our states to re-examine the technical qualifications demanded of their teachers, so that many more liberal arts college graduates may find their way into the teaching ranks of the public schools.

In addition to teaching, young women of today can make significant contributions in many other ways. The fields of nursing, social service with its tremendous effect on family morale, work in day-care and recreational centers—these all represent important professional areas in which women can serve their country. In addition, community services and Red Cross work will provide countless opportunities on the volunteer level.

Finally, it must be emphasized that women have a special responsibility at this time to continue their education and prepare themselves to carry the burden of the professions. They must be reminded constantly, when tempted to stop their studies to do direct work for national service, that they are called upon to take the place of the young men who are leaving our colleges and graduate schools to enter the armed services. It is their duty to apply themselves with diligence not only to technical and scientific studies, but also to the arts and the humanities which will nourish our whole society and will maintain our normal life-patterns in the present and for the future.

By recognizing the enormous potentialities of American women, and by directing these into channels where they can be most effective, the government will provide strength for the emergency and bulwarks for the future. It will maintain the foundations of our society and open to women new and constructive ways of participating in service to their country.

Anne Ceglis, an M.W.C. junior, left on Saturday, January 6, for an eleven-day cruise to South America. A featured entertainer, Anne will sing with two bands, one from New York, the other from Norfolk. She will also act as a professional accompanist.

Her sponsors, the 21 Street Businessmen's Association, discovered Anne when she was singing in church recitals in Norfolk. Another singer, Walter Noonan, is also scheduled for the cruise.

The itinerary of the New Amsterdam covers Kingston, Jamaica, British West Indies, Curacao, Caracas, Venezuela, and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

Passengers on this pleasure cruise are from Virginia, Washington, and New York. Notables such as Mrs. H. M. Robertson, Governor Battle, and Congressmen from the places mentioned are reported to be on board.

The ship has eleven decks and three swimming pools, beside escalators, elevators, beauty parlors and other luxuries for its passengers. The New Amsterdam embarked on the cruise from Norfolk.

Anne, who appeared on television to advertise the cruise, will sing classical, semi-classical and popular selections.

University President Carries Heavy Load

University men frequently complain that they are burdened with an overload of work by their professors. But compared to the numberless tasks which fall on the shoulders of a college or university president, their workload and even the duties and responsibilities of many businessmen seem light.

For the chief executive of a university in 1951 is no longer a scholar who can devote the majority of his time to the intellectual or spiritual development of his institution. A modern university head is an individual who must combine the abilities of a politician, a community leader, a businessman, a journalist, an orator, and often a lobbyist. He must also be prepared to attend every sort of social function from banquets to ladies' teas.

Today's president must look back with fond nostalgia to the "good old days" when college presidents had only to deal with the educational and intellectual affairs of their institutions.

One has only to look at the activities of President Darden to realize that the "easy days" of educational executive are as much a part of the past as a coed-less Virginia or an unconfused Wash-

A new semester, and a lot of new plans. That's what's ahead for the riding gang at MWC. To begin with, there's the Virginia School and College Association Riding

Meet, which will be held at the stables on April 28. This is something really big to look forward to. Although we have participated in the meets when they've been held at other schools and colleges in the past—last year at Lexington, for instance, will long be remembered by those who went!—we've never had the meet at MWC. It's going to mean a lot of work for us all, but we think it's rather an honor to have it here. Here's hoping we'll add bushels of ribbons to our collection in the club room. Horses and riders are already being schooled with the team in mind, and a tentative program has been drawn up. There'll be a meeting of the Association here February 11, and after that things should really start rolling. You'll be hearing more about the Meet as plans for it are made.

The Spring Show has been scheduled for May Day weekend, as far as we know now. With two shows right together that way, there'll be some really weary girls drooping around campus when they're both over. Well, maybe we can use the tricks we learn in the Meet—the hard way, no doubt—in the Spring Show. The date for the Gymkhana has not been definitely set as yet, but we hear it'll be around the last of this month or the first of March. Maybe by that time the blizzards will be over, and there'll be some decent footing in the ring.

We've been hearing lots of nice things about the Cavalry girls and the good job they've been doing down at the police station. When they've finished their training, these girls will be able to handle efficiently any of the many and complex jobs that a police force must perform daily, and they'll be able to meet any emergency that might arise, and do it well. Confidentially, we hear that the girls enjoy their work immensely. You'd be surprised at the hilarious things that happen at the station. MWC should really be proud of their Cavalry—a grand organization doing a grand job.

R. A. Activities

Prepare now for "fun on the ice"—bring those ice skates from home or get them out of your closets. The tennis courts will be flooded for skating some time soon provided the cold weather continues.

Attention golf enthusiasts! A Golf Club is now being organized on campus. Its constitution is being written and should be completed by the time play begins, approximately five weeks from now. Members of the club will be chosen according to interest in the sport, old members consisting of girls on the golf committee. New members will be admitted in the middle of the semester, and the Golf Tournament will be held during March. Come, join, and play!

On Saturday afternoon, February 10, Recreation Association sponsored free entertainment for the girls and their dates who attended the Valentine Dance. Activities, held in the Big Gym from two-thirty 'til six, consisted of ping pong, dancing, bridge, and canasta, and were under the direction of Pam Powell, chairman of the Social Recreation Committee.

A Sports Day, similar to the one presented for the freshmen in September, will be sponsored by Recreation Association on March 3, for the benefit of high school seniors who will be visiting at the college that weekend. At this time exhibitions of swimming, fencing, archery, golf, and tennis will be held.

Six tournaments will be held here on campus during March—badminton, ping-pong, golf, tennis, archery, and softball. They will be open to all girls attending MWC, so plan now to enter the one, or ones, of your choice.

Miss Louise Larson, president of the Fencing Club, will represent RA Council in the Junior Benefit Beauty Contest on March 2.

Girls Demonstrate Basketball Plays

On Monday, January 15, at 7:30 P. M. in Monroe Gym, twelve girls, under the direction of Miss Woosley, demonstrated basketball fouls and violations and defensive techniques. Visiting coaches and some of their team players from local high schools and the Washington area attended the demonstration. The spectators were encouraged to ask questions during the demonstration.

Devils Take Volleyball Point; Win Over Goats 24-19, 26-21

The Devils now lead the Goats by two points in the traditional rivalry between the teams, having captured both the hockey and volleyball points. (There are a total of eleven possible points, one each being awarded for basketball, softball, golf, archery, tennis, and swimming, besides the two already mentioned, and three for Devil-Goat Day, which is held in April.)

Dorm Tournaments Now In Progress

The 1951 Dormitory Basketball Tournament opened officially on Wednesday, February 7, it has been announced by Pat Oberholzer, basketball committee chairman. There are two leagues in the tourney, each consisting of five teams who play four games each. The games are held on Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday nights, and on Monday and Wednesday afternoons. On Monday, February 26, the winner of League I will meet the winner of League II for the dormitory championship. All participants must wear white, tennis shoes, and socks, and players who have games at either 7:00 or 8:00 should be ready to play fifteen minutes before the scheduled time.

In March, immediately after the dormitory tournament ends, try-outs will be held for the four class teams, and class play will begin. Any member of a dorm team is eligible to try for her class team, but if she plays on the class team, she is ineligible for dormitory play the following year. The Devil-Goat teams will be chosen from the four class teams.

The league members and the schedule of games for the dormitory tournament are as follows:

League I—Willard II, Virginia III, Tri-Unit, Betty Lewis, Cornell
League II—Willard I, Virginia I, Willard III, Off-Campus, Westmoreland.

Game Schedule:
Tuesday, Feb. 13—7:00—Willard I vs. Willard III; 8:00—Westmoreland vs. Virginia I
Wednesday, Feb. 14—Willard II vs. Cornell
Thursday, Feb. 15—7:00—Betty Lewis vs. Virginia III; 8:00—Willard vs. Westmoreland
Monday, Feb. 19—4:45—Off-campus vs. Virginia I; 7:00—Betty Lewis vs. Cornell; 8:00—Virginia III vs. Tri-Unit

The volleyball point was decided amidst the cheers of excited spectators on Thursday, December 14. Two games were played, the first of which went to the Red-and-White, 24-19, after the score had zig-zagged between the two teams several times. Jane Lloyd was high scorer for the winners with ten points, and "Sissy" Davis copped top honors for the losers with five tallies.

In the second and deciding game, it was the Devils all the way. They struck out with an early lead and held it to the final whistle. The Goats brought their score up valiantly, but not quickly enough, and the contest closed 26 to 21 in favor of the Devils. Brooke Woods tallied eight points for the winners, and Brauer led the losers with five markers. High scorers for the night were Lloyd with thirteen points and Woods with eleven for the Devils; Orem and Brauer tied with six apiece for the Goats.

Players were as follows:
Devils: Woods, Bettcher, Lloyd, Belden, Comacho, Mcnerweather, Brown, B. Davis, Cannady, and McFarland.

Goats: Macheras, Orem, Brauer, Buckwalter, C. King, Heimann, Farmer, E. Davis, Amos, Gallant, Martin, and Drogaris.

University President

 ington. His secretary confessed recently that she did not see when Mr. Darden had a free moment during the day.

A recent survey made through the National Association of State Universities indicates that President Darden's colleagues at other institutions apparently are forced to set a pace of life for themselves far faster than the average businessman.

On the basis of the NASU's survey, Dr. I. D. Weeks, president of the University of South Dakota, writing in School and Society, reached the following conclusions:

Leidecker Lectures At Southern California

Dr. Kurt F. Leidecker, associate professor of Philosophy at Mary Washington, will be lecturing at the University of Southern California this semester. He will give a series of lectures at the Forty-second Semi-annual Philosophy Forum which will include W. T. Harris and the St. Louis School of Philosophy, Alcott and the Concord School of Philosophy, and Emerson and Indian Philosophy.

lege Geneva, N. Y.

Paul S. Havens, President, Wilson College, Chambersburg, Pa.

1) The presidents of state universities have a task that would challenge the ingenuity of a superman. It is a difficult position to endure, to say nothing of filling it effectively and with credit.

2) The president is the one state university administrator who is primarily responsible for getting the budget through legislative channels.

3) Presidents endeavor to keep in touch with their students. The size of the student body and the very nature of the university presidency make it necessary to confine these associations to meeting with student leaders, giving addresses, and attending social functions.

4) The university president is an active force in directing national foundations and regional, state, and national organizations.

Thus, it seems apparent, the university president of today is much more than an administrator of academic activities. His job is one which is, has been, and will be of the greatest importance not only to the life of the campus but also to that of the community, the nation, and the world. He is, in short, one of the most valuable leaders in human society today.

Jones, Diehl Edit Combined Epaulet

Cathy Jones, a junior, has been chosen to edit "The Epaulet" next year. Cathy is an art major and has been poetry editor this year.

This year an "Epaulet" tradition will be broken. Instead of having the new editor put out the fourth issue of the year, the third and fourth issues will be combined under the co-editorship of Cathy Jones and Joan Diehl, who as present editor has put out two issues enthusiastically received by the student body.

According to Joan, the staff has been considering this move for several months. The most important aim in combining the issues is to provide a larger magazine to show to the potential advertisers and freshmen next September. Also, there will be sufficient funds to print 200 extra copies.

As a result of this plan the staff hopes that "Epaulet" will gain more support. After this new "shot in the arm" the magazine will go back to a four-issues-a-year basis. According to Joan, the "Epaulet," which began its fight for prominence this year, is asking the students to back up the new plan, so that the "Epaulet" may keep growing.
